“Yvonne of Brittany” (1896?)

In your mother’s apple-orchard,
   Just a year ago, last spring:
Do you remember, Yvonne!
   The dear trees lavishing
Rain of their starry blossoms
   To make you a coronet?
Do you ever remember, Yvonne?
   As I remember yet.

In your mother’s apple-orchard,
   When the world was left behind:
You were shy, so shy, Yvonne!
   But your eyes were calm and kind.
We spoke of the apple harvest,
   When the cider press is set,
And such-like trifles, Yvonne!
   That doubtless you forget.

In the still, soft Breton twilight,
   We were silent; words were few,
Till your mother came out chiding,
   For the grass was bright with dew:
But I know your heart was beating,
   Like a fluttered, frightened dove.
Do you ever remember, Yvonne?
   That first faint flush of love?

In the fulness of midsummer,
   When the apple-bloom was shed,
Oh, brave was your surrender,
   Though shy the words you said.
I was glad, so glad, Yvonne!
   To have led you home at last;
Do you ever remember, Yvonne!
   How swiftly the days passed?
